Our president, John MacArthur, spent a week in mid-August as the keynote speaker at a conference on expository preaching held in Santo Domingo, the capital city of the Dominican Republic. In a nation of 10 million people, 70% of whom are Roman Catholic, the impact of this conference was immense. The conference hall sat 7500, and 1000 more stood in the back for each session. Not only did a total of 15,000 people attend the conference, but each session was live-streamed (28,000 different registered computers over the course of the conference). Many had written in and said that their entire church was gathered around the computer to watch. Amazingly, these 28,000 computers were in 62 nations on five continents. While Roman Catholicism has had a stranglehold on Spanish-speaking nations and cultures for centuries, the Gospel is now making historic inroads as evidenced by the hunger for the Scriptures shown at this conference.

Expectantly,
We Train Men as if Lives Depended on It!
